Residents confident in police

New survey shows increase in satisfaction with policing in Waltham Forest

Waltham Forest residents' confidence in local policing has increased by almost 20 per cent since December 2012. That's according to the latest figures released by the Metropolitan Police Service (MPS).

Results for the third quarter MPS Public Attitude Survey show that Seventy-seven per cent of residents surveyed said they thought Waltham Forest police were doing an 'excellent' or 'good' job, while 84 per cent said they 'strongly agreed' or 'agreed' that the local police are dealing with the things that matter most to people in the community.

77 per cent of residents surveyed said Waltham Forest police were doing an 'excellent' or 'good' job residents' confidence in the police has increased from 58 per cent in December 2012 to 77 per cent in February 2014.

This means that Waltham Forest has the third highest satisfaction levels of the 32 boroughs of the MPS and was beaten by only Richmond-upon-Thames and Kingston-upon-Thames.

Council have come together over recent years to identify and tackle issues that most trouble residents.

A recent example of successful partnership working saw a problem street drinker hit with a three year Anti-Social Behaviour Order (ASBO).

Making the Scene

The Council's Cabinet and Leadership Team check progress of The Scene at Cleveland Place

Council Leader Chris Robbins was on hand to inspect the progress of the development of the new cinema complex in Walthamstow Town Centre at the end of last month.

"It's coming along really well," said Chris. "I know there are lots of residents who are very excited

- The Scene at Cleveland Place is rapidly taking shape
- New cinema complex being built on the former arcade site at the prospect of a new, state-of-the-art cinema opening in Waltham Forest.

"This is one of our key regeneration projects and will really make a difference to the borough. Over the years various attempts have been made to help bring the arcade site back into use, so the fact this development is happening now is very rewarding."

The Scene at Cleveland Place is a £30million regeneration project that will centre around a nine screen digital cinema capable of seating 1,200 film-goers. It will also include 14 houses, 107 flats and five restaurant/retail spaces.

The scheme is just one element of the Council's 'Creating a better place to live' campaign that is committed to creating better high streets, leisure, schools and housing in Waltham Forest.

Trustee – The Mill, Walthamstow

The Mill is a thriving community hub located in Coppermill Lane in Walthamstow, on the site of the former St James Street Library. It opened in August 2011, is run almost entirely by volunteers and is open every day except Mondays.

The Mill works in a unique way. Everything that happens here comes from the inspiration and hard work of the community, who bring their skills and experience to the project.

Hundreds of groups and individuals have brought their ideas to life at The Mill, from after-school classes to knitting clubs and language classes to community breakfasts.

Since joining as a Trustee, I have seen The Mill grow to host projects run by other charities and Waltham Forest Council. But The Mill is also a place where anyone can visit for free – a friendly space to see regular art exhibitions, use the kids' playroom, borrow a book from the honesty library or sit with the papers and a cup of tea.

Users can also access low cost rooms for hire for meetings, birthday parties or try out a new business idea. Some groups that use the centre include the Asian Women's Group and The Recycled Teenagers group of older residents.

The Mill exists to create stronger connections between people, to encourage everyone to share their skills and time and to express themselves creatively. We aim to reflect the interests and priorities of local people and to be a trusted part of the community.

Now, we have launched a new Friends scheme to help fund and promote the work of The Mill. We want to encourage more local people to become a Friend of The Mill and help it grow even further.

Becoming a Friend of The Mill is a great way to guarantee its future in Walthamstow, serving the whole community. Donations will go directly to help maintain our work and keep it open for the hundreds of people who visit every year.

I'd like to encourage more local people to become a Friend of The Mill. Spread the word to your neighbours, organise a fundraising event, hold your meetings or birthday party in the building, join us at our next community event or suggest an idea for an activity.

If you would like to find out more, please visit www.themill-coppermill.org/friends-of-the-mill, phone 020 8521 3211 or pop in and see us at The Mill, 7-11 Coppermill Lane, E17 7HA.

Housing Benefit fraudster caught

A woman who pretended to be paying rent to a landlord in order to claim Housing Benefit turned out not only to own the property, but to not even have a mortgage.

The fraudster, Angelique Ioannou, 54, of Brindwood Road, Chingford, pleaded guilty to dishonestly providing information to Waltham Forest Council at Snaresbrook Crown Court on Friday 24 January.

Between 26 November 2001 and 21 March 2011 Ms Ioannou pocketed £63,629 in housing benefit that she was not entitled to. In sentencing her, the Judge acknowledged that she had repaid £49,134 soon after her crime was detected and that this action had saved her from going to prison.

She was sentenced to ten months' imprisonment, suspended for two years, on each of two counts, to be served concurrently. The Judge also made a compensation order for the sum of £14,495, plus costs of £3,000 which she has to pay at a rate of £150 per month, or face an additional default sentence of six months in prison.

Cllr Mark Rusling, Cabinet Member for Economic Development and Corporate Resources, said: "It's extraordinary that someone in such a privileged financial position should commit such a crime.

"She is very fortunate to avoid prison, but at least we have managed to recover the lion's share of this gross overpayment already.

"That said, it obviously doesn't absolve her of responsibility from stealing from the public purse.

"I find it a particularly ugly crime at a time when people in genuine need are coping with cuts to benefits that will really hurt them. It's a vindication of the work our Counter Fraud Team carries out to track down benefit cheats."

In brief

Celebrating silver surfers

With technology becoming a greater part of people's lives, the Council is doing all it can to help older residents and people with learning disabilities stay up to date with the latest trends.

Thanks to a range of multimedia projects, people living in residential homes are now 'skyping' their relatives abroad, making films of their life histories and creating their own music playlists.

Residents with a visual impairment are also using large tablets to read newspapers more easily and specialist software to scan and read their post aloud. This work, and the difference it has made to people's lives, will be celebrated at a free event called 'i can in Waltham Forest' on Friday 21 February, from 10am to 4pm at Waltham Forest Assembly Hall. Open to all residents, the event will give people the chance to find out more through films, presentations and interactive stalls.

Ready to help

The Council's Highways team, pictured above with a machine which can suck up excess water and clear gullies, are on standby for bad weather.

The distressing pictures of flooding around the country, and in the capital, are enough to make residents think about just how prepared we are here in Waltham Forest should the incessant rain continue.

Residents may have seen reference to an Environment Agency report last week which said that Waltham Forest has a high number of homes at potential risk from flooding.

The borough provides water for 1.5 million people in London through the reservoirs in the Lea Valley and there are a variety of rivers and streams which add to the borough's open spaces.

These water sources mean that there are permanent measures in place to deal with flooding such as sluice gates and weirs which deal with excess water.

Last week, there was localised flooding in Lower Hall Lane in Chingford. The emergency services, Thames Water and Council staff were on the scene quickly and the flooding was dealt with by opening a sluice gate which let water run away. While it was very concerning for residents, luckily no homes were damaged.

But given the unprecedented rainfall and flooding in parts of the country, it is understandable that residents are concerned about what would happen if the borough were to experience flooding.

Council Leader, Chris Robbins, told Waltham Forest News: "The dreadful scenes in places like Somerset are bound to raise concerns locally and we take our responsibility to support residents very seriously. While we know that the flooding risk is helped by all of the permanent flood measures here in the borough, we are in daily contact with Thames Water, the Environment Agency and the emergency services.

"We haven't experienced any major disruption so far and our risk remains low. In the unlikely event that significant flooding should happen, the Council is on high alert and would ensure that all of our staff and resources would be focused on helping our residents."

Residents are advised to continue to listen to national and regional news for the most up to date weather information, and the Council's website will be regularly updated with information if the risk level rises.

4 Priorities

Taking care of business

Waltham Forest Council has four key priorities to help improve the lives of residents. In this edition we look at what is being doing to help you gain access to training, education and jobs

Cllr Mark Rusling meets apprentices working on The Scene at Cleveland Place. The Council has also recently hosted jobs and skills fairs to help young people into work and training

It is all very well for Councils to talk about prioritising particular areas of work, but the real test comes with the amount of resource they dedicate to a particular issue and the real measures they put in place.

At a time when local government is coping with unprecedented cuts to its funding, it is easy to imagine that services are receiving less money right across the board, but in Waltham Forest the Council has prioritised the need to help you and your family find employment.

Last year the Council established its new Business, Employment and Skills unit, putting money into all three areas. Concerted efforts have been made to increase the level of interaction the Council has with local businesses, improve what it does to help its residents gain necessary training, and ultimately strengthen what it does to help residents into employment.

And the results are proving to make a real difference to people in Waltham Forest looking for work, as Cllr Mark Rusling, Cabinet Member for Economic Development and Corporate Resources, explained to Waltham Forest News.

“In terms of overall reductions in unemployment levels over the period since the Business, Employment and Skills Team was set up, we can point to a general fall of 25 per cent in Jobseeker’s Allowance claimants and a specific fall of 29 per cent in youth unemployment.

“That puts us among the top ten performing boroughs in London on overall falls in unemployment during the period between March to December 2013 and I think that has a lot to do with the hard work we have been undertaking. In particular the close working partnership with Job Centre Plus has made a real difference.”

The Council came together with Job Centre Plus and other local employment support and training providers. This led to the establishment of a Youth Employment Hub – the first of its kind in the whole of England – and this has helped hundreds of local people find work or training.

One of the key pieces of work the Council has been undertaking has been making links with businesses opening up in the borough. When a new Tesco opened up in Highams Park the Council worked closely to ensure as many of the posts as possible went to people living in Waltham Forest.

“By printing a code in Waltham Forest News, local residents could be assured of an interview, ultimately resulting in 75 Waltham Forest residents securing employment with Tesco,” explained Cllr Rusling.

“We worked really closely with Waltham Forest College and the Job Centre, and our Skills unit was on hand to help individuals meet the requirements necessary to put them in the running for the positions.

“Just before Christmas a planning application for a new Morrisons store in Walthamstow was approved and we know it will bring with it around 450 new jobs, around 300 within the new supermarket. I anticipate we can work to see up to three-quarters of those jobs go to local people by using the experience and knowledge we have in the new team.”

The Business, Employment and Skills team also target jobs that are associated with big regeneration and development schemes, such as the new cinema development under construction in the centre of Walthamstow. This has seen a number of local apprentices employed on site.

“As an authority we take on apprentices every year and encourage our contractors, such as J. B. Riney who look after our highways, to follow suit,” said Cllr Rusling.

“Now our Business, Employment and Skills unit is up and running and making an impact, I am sure there are plenty more opportunities out there to maximise the chances for our residents to find work.”

"There are lots of courses and opportunities for people. But more support needs to be available to single mums and people with families so that they can fit attending a course around the needs of their children."

"The Council does very well at the moment – it offers a lot of courses to people. But maybe it needs to do more to make information about courses, training and job opportunities available to people – perhaps more posters and leaflets."

"It's good that the Council works with businesses to encourage employers to take on local residents. It doesn't just mean that people get a job – working locally can make life easier for people and their families as they don't have to commute as much."

"There's too much emphasis on formal education these days – more needs to be done on skills. We need more apprenticeships and more training opportunities for people to give them practical skills. Courses need to be more outcome-focused and less about box-ticking."

"The Council should be more proactive about getting information out on what opportunities there are around skills and training. Courses shouldn't be one size fits all but reflect the different needs of people like school leavers and parents returning to work."

Priority: Helping you and your family

Commitment:

- Not raise council tax and will continue to fund the freedom pass
- Make sure you have access to training and education that helps you get a job whatever your age
- Support schools so that they can deliver a high quality education for our young people in decent buildings
- Work with the community to keep vulnerable adults and children safe

Priority: Making our community a safer place

Priority: Keeping our borough clean

Priority: Bringing you better shopping, streets and leisure

Stencils are being painted on pavements to remind irresponsible dog owners to clear up after their pets

Report those dirty dogs

- Council campaign targets dog mess on the streets of the borough
- Incentive scheme and reporting pads launched to catch the culprits

The 'Don't mess with Waltham Forest' campaign launched by the Council to address issues of people rubbishing the borough's streets is now focusing on irresponsible dog owners who do not clean up after their pets.

In a two-pronged attack on the problem the Council has launched both an incentive scheme and a new reporting pad that residents can use to let the Council's Dog Enforcement Team know about irresponsible dog owners.

"We're determined to get to grips with where these problems arise most often and want to confront the individuals responsible for leaving our streets and our parks in a mess," said Cllr Clyde Loakes, Deputy Leader and Cabinet Member for Environment.

"Despite having one of the largest Dog Enforcement Teams in London, realistically it is very difficult for them to catch irresponsible dog owners and issue Fixed Penalty Notices as they need to witness the dogs in the act. "Our regular warning stencils and leaflets have gone some way to address the issue, but we need to ratchet up the campaign. To do that we need our residents' support."

The Council needs residents to help them by reporting owners of dogs that do not pick up after their pets. Anyone who is regularly out and about in the borough's parks, or anywhere else where dog mess is a problem, would be ideally placed to identify irresponsible dog owners.

"We know residents hate dog mess left for them to step in. We're asking them to help us track down the irresponsible individuals who fail to pick up after their dogs."

A pilot scheme will offer residents £25 worth of High Street Vouchers for intelligence that leads to a Fixed Penalty Notice being issued against an irresponsible dog owner.

By increasing the sources of intelligence the Dog Enforcement Team can target reported hotspots and look to approach identifiable owners. To assist with reporting, the Council has also devised a reporting pad that asks residents to write down information about the dirty dogs and their owners.

By knowing the type of dog, colour of dog, description of owner, location, time and occurrence (daily/weekly) the Dog Enforcement Team can visit the specific location at a specific time, to hopefully pick out the culprits.

Residents can either drop off the page of the pad at Council offices or email the information to the Dog Enforcement Team.

"We know residents hate dog mess left for them to step in and so we are calling upon them to help us track down the minority of irresponsible individuals who fail to pick up after their dogs," said Cllr Loakes.

"It is disgusting to think that children could step in it or it could end up on the wheels of our kids' bikes or prams or even wheelchairs which then gets spread around schools, homes and cars. Cleaning up after your dog is not a new thing and there is really no excuse for dog owners to not take on the responsibility – especially when bagged-up dog mess can be put in any street bin!"

The Council knows that the vast majority of the borough's dog owners do clean up after their pets. Indeed, they are keen to enlist the help of as many responsible dog owners as possible as they are regularly out and about in the borough.

Waltham Forest for Dogs has already got behind the scheme and other groups such as Snow Angels, Street Watchers, Friends of Parks and Residents Associations have also been approached.

The Dog Control Orders that came into force at the beginning of this year not only help re-establish the need for dog owners to pick up after their pets, but close loopholes where previously the Council was unable to enforce in regard to dog mess – such as in car parks and cemeteries.

Takeaway infestation

- A poor standard of hygiene and cleaning was found by inspectors
- Cooked and raw food was being kept at inappropriate temperatures

Some of the filthy conditions discovered inside Double Pizza and China Golden Gate in Lea Bridge Road

A takeaway in Lea Bridge Road was shut down last month by Waltham Forest Council after food inspectors found food at risk of contamination from a mouse infestation, poor temperature control and dirty conditions throughout.

Double Pizza and China Golden Gate, situated at 394 Lea Bridge Road was closed on Wednesday 22 January by the Council's Environmental Health Officers. During an inspection they discovered a mouse infestation – with droppings found in the kitchen, in food storage areas and contaminating food containers. There was also a poor standard of hygiene and inadequate cleaning throughout the premises.

In addition, inspectors were very concerned by the lack of regard to temperature control in the takeaway. The hot cabinet storing cooked chicken was not nearly hot enough and the fridge temperatures were not cold enough to protect food from the growth of dangerous bacteria.

Cllr Clyde Loakes, Deputy Leader and Cabinet Member for Environment, said: "We have an excellent track record when it comes to exposing rogue food establishments that take a laissez-faire attitude to the responsibilities implicit in how they run their business.

"Cleaning, storing food at the right temperature, adhering to hygienic practices – these are all things that need to be taken very seriously. They are not optional extras and anyone who is blasé enough to disregard them will answer to us.

"We will uncover them, we will shut them down if they pose a serious risk to health, we will put them in front of Magistrates and we will make them change their ways.

"This takeaway may be open again, as they have met legal standards, but we will prosecute them for having played fast and loose with the wellbeing of our residents and I am confident the court will again back us up and punish the owners appropriately."

The Council took the matter to Stratford Magistrates' Court on Friday 24 January and obtained an emergency prohibition order to prevent the premises from operating. Upon satisfying inspectors that all the emergency issues outlined by the court had been addressed, the outlet was allowed to re-open on Tuesday 28 January.

The Council is now preparing to bring a prosecution against Double Pizza and China Golden Gate. The premises will remain on the Council's list of high risk food businesses until inspectors are satisfied that food safety is being properly managed.

Food Festival

The first urban food growing festival is coming to the borough between Friday 21 and Sunday 30 March as Waltham Forest Council strives to transform our corner of the capital into the garden of London. We need people and organisations that provide teaching and training on growing your own food to take part in the nine day festival that is being called 'Cultivate'. A forum for further collaboration and projects is also planned.

Leyton's Gravity Circus Centre offers an exciting new way for residents to get fit

Circus school is flying high!

- New circus skills centre opens in Leyton
- Workshops and taster sessions are available for children and adults alike

If your good intentions to exercise more in 2014 are already starting to wane, then finding a fun new way to stay fit and active could be just the thing you need to get back on track.

Luckily, a new circus centre in Leyton is offering local people an exciting way to get fit and healthy. Gravity Circus Centre opened in Leyton in September 2013 and has been going from strength to strength ever since.

But what makes a small industrial unit in Leyton the perfect venue for teaching budding acrobats? Waltham Forest News spoke to Yam Doyev, Director of Gravity Circus Centre, to find out more.

Yam told Waltham Forest News: "I moved to London from my home in Israel 11 years ago as I decided I wanted to specialise in aerial performance and further my career.

"I had been training at various facilities before deciding to set up my own circus centre last year. We decided to set up Gravity Circus Centre in Leyton for a number of reasons. There are two other circus facilities in London. One is in Old Street and one is in south east London, so we thought it would be good to be able to open somewhere that was towards the North-East side of London and Essex.

"As soon as we saw the

"I'd really like to encourage people to give one of our workshops a try and see if it's a good way for them to keep fit and healthy."

premises we knew it was perfect because it has high ceilings – which are important for the aerial courses we offer. My partner and I really love the area as well. We have a dog and like to go walking near the centre and take advantage of the borough's open spaces."

Since the centre opened last September hundreds of beginners and experienced performers alike have learnt circus skills including aerial hoop, silks, rope, tumbling and static trapeze.

And while the idea of learning acrobatic skills as an adult might sound difficult, you don't necessarily need to have any gymnastic prowess to take part.

Yam said: "I think today more and more people are getting bored of traditional fitness activities like because you're using your whole body. And as well as being beneficial to your health, it helps you build confidence. When you're doing something like learning aerial skills you push yourself and perhaps challenge your fears."

As well as offering classes to adults, Gravity has also recently begun a youth programme for young people aged from seven to 18. Apart from being a fun and exciting way for children to learn new skills it's a good way for your child to make new friends.

Yam added: "I'm hoping that our new youth sessions will not only encourage local children to have fun while keeping fit, but I hope that the centre might be able to uncover the next generation of talented performers as well!"

Waltham Forest

Could you adopt a child?

- 94 per cent of adoption applicants in the borough are approved
- Open evenings give information and advice about adoption

If you've ever considered adopting but thought you might not be suitable, think again. Today, having a sense of humour, patience and bags of energy are more important than being married or owning your own home.

In fact, 94 per cent of people who apply to adopt children in Waltham Forest are approved – showing that the criteria aren't as tough as some people might think.

"We do of course look for people who can provide a stable home," said Cllr Clare Coghill, Cabinet Member for Children and Young People, "but that doesn't mean people need to be married or in a relationship."

"We know that families come in many different forms, so we welcome adoptive parents from different backgrounds, as long as they can show that they are serious about taking a child on and giving them a secure life.

"That means anyone over the age of 21 who has a spare bedroom can apply to adopt, whether they are gay or straight, married or not, and in work or out of work," added Cllr Coghill. "You don't even need to live in Waltham Forest

Families come in all different shapes and sizes – the key is being 'close knit' necessarily, as we accept parents from other boroughs."

David* and James* are two of those parents, who after building a good relationship with the Council's adoption team, decided to adopt in Waltham Forest, despite living in a different part of London.

Together for over 20 years and in a civil partnership for the last seven, the couple adopted their son Julian* 18 months ago, when he was four.

"It was obviously a life-changing experience adopting Julian," David said. "At first it was incredibly challenging, but like most things you adapt and get better at it as time goes on and it really has been such an incredibly positive experience for both us and Julian."

And the relationship the couple formed with the Council still stands, as the adoption team continue to provide what David describes as a "light touch" and "helpful" advice to this day.

He admits that the process in the run-up to adopting Julian was "quite rigorous" but now that his son is settled he reflects that it was worth it for the "huge rewards" and gave him and his partner an insight into their relationship.

"Because they ask you so much and interview you and your partner separately at times you do find out a lot about yourself and your relationship with your partner," David told Waltham Forest News, "not to mention examining stuff such as your domestic set up and work life balance.

"That said, it was also incredibly interesting and helpful and of course you appreciate fully the need for such thoroughness," he added.

Over the next few months the Council is holding adoption open evenings for anyone who thinks they might be able to offer a loving home to a child and wants to find out more about the process.

At each session, children and parents who have gone through the adoption process will be talking about their own stories. To find out more, simply turn up to one of the following open evenings – no booking is needed:

- Wednesday 19 March, 6.15pm, Waltham Forest Town Hall, Forest Road, E17 4JL
- Thursday 8 May, 6.15pm, Waltham Forest Town Hall, Forest Road, E17 4JL

Child Poverty Conference

Work to combat child poverty in the borough was discussed at the first ever Waltham Forest Child and Family Poverty Conference on Wednesday 5 February. Spearheaded by Cllr Karen Bellamy, Junior Lead Member for Child and Family Poverty, the conference was the biggest event of its kind in recent years, bringing together over 200 delegates.

Delegates came from all over London and represented both voluntary sector organisations and council teams working with children and families. Key note speakers included London Assembly Member Fiona Twycross and Ade Sofola from 4 in 10, Save the Children.

The conference helped form new relationships between many services, bringing several organisations together for the first time. The event was one of a number of projects initiated by the Council's new Child and Family Poverty Board to combat poverty in the borough.

The board has created food supply chains to local food banks with FareShare, mobile food vans and has worked up a new Child and Family Poverty Strategy that it launched at the conference. The strategy emphasises the need to find ways for organisations to collaborate better and not work in silos.

Over the next four months the Council will be consulting with partners and services about the strategy to determine their own set of commitments for alleviating poverty. Together over the coming year the Council will work with others to complete projects to create robust food supply chains, for new and existing foodbanks and to expand the scope of the mobile high quality fresh produce shop.

- 'Library Plus' takes effect this month with the reopening of Leyton Library
- Great new facilities to be complemented with an array of new services

At a time when libraries are changing, it is refreshing to find Waltham Forest Council embarking upon a series of investments that will see libraries fit for the 21st century – starting in Leyton.

Cllr Ahsan Khan, Cabinet Member for Health and Wellbeing, told Waltham Forest News: "We know that our libraries need to develop and offer more than they used to.

"By equipping them with the facilities to offer a range of services over and above what one might expect from a traditional library we can meet a range of needs and keep libraries relevant and vital to the local community."

Last August the Council announced a transformation to its library services with significant improvement works scheduled over the next two years to all of its main libraries.

Leyton Library was earmarked to be the first to be refurbished as part of the new Library Plus initiative that will also see extensive makeovers taking place at Leytonstone, Walthamstow and Chingford libraries.

The changes to Leyton Library include a modern IT suite with fast and reliable Wi-Fi and internet throughout the building, and brand new PCs on the ground floor. There will also be a larger children's library that includes a new activity space and storytelling area, and a dedicated library for teenagers with new books, a study space and computers.

"It's important we build on the success of the services our residents most value about our libraries, which is why we are investing in what we know people come to the library for most of all," said Cllr Khan.

"However, as well as these state-of-the-art facilities, we're also looking to offer a host of services not normally associated with libraries. When it opens on Wednesday 26 February, Council staff will be on hand to assist residents to access services on self-service public PCs."

Residents can apply for benefits, register births, pay council tax and even report missed bin collections. The Citizen's Advice Bureau will be on hand from 9am to 5pm Mondays to Fridays to provide advice and practical support on a range of other issues, including legal and financial problems.

"It is one of the four key priorities of this Council to 'Help you and your family', and there can be no clearer indication of this than what we are trying to do with our new Library Plus service," said Cllr Khan.

"We're working in partnership with the University of East London and Birbeck University to provide careers and education support and guidance at Leyton Library each fortnight.

"We'll also have our own employment team available every week to support residents with access to training and education. It doesn't matter what your age, experience or background is – we're here to help you back into work."

There will also be regular Healthwatch sessions and staff from the local children's centre will be based in Leyton Library one morning per week, to provide drop-in sessions with parents and families. These sessions will include family assessments, advice and practical support and referrals to other services.

The £1million refurbishment of Leyton Library is part of the Council's 'Creating a Better Place' campaign, that helped deliver £160million worth of regeneration works across Waltham Forest in 2013 and has secured over £700 million in the coming years up to 2018.

The designs for the £1.5 million refurbishment of Leytonstone Library are now being developed and initial plans can be viewed on the Council's website. Overall the Library Plus refurbishments across the four libraries will amount to £5 million.

The Big London ENERGY SWITCH

Waltham Forest Council is supporting a scheme to help see if residents can get a better deal on their gas and electricity bills

You may be paying too much for your gas and electricity!

How does the scheme work?

- Ⓔ The Big London Energy Switch is a collective switching scheme run by Waltham Forest Council and a number of other councils in London.
- Ⓔ By gathering together a large number of people who want to lower their gas and electricity bills the Big London Energy Switch, using a third party 'switching provider', can encourage energy companies to offer their lowest prices.
- Ⓔ Once registration is closed, all the energy companies are invited to offer their best prices to everyone who registered.
- Ⓔ You will then receive details of exactly how much money you could potentially save by switching.
- Ⓔ You can choose whether or not to accept the offer.

To find out more or to register go to www.biglondonenergyswitch.org.uk or call 020 8496 3000 (if you do not have internet access)

How much can I save?

Savings depend on how much energy you use and the price of your current tariff.

There is no guarantee the switch will save you money, for example if you have recently switched supplier you may already be on the best value tariff. You are under no obligation to accept the offer. A similar scheme has seen yearly savings of between £60 and £200 per household, so there is nothing to lose by registering.

Can I take part?

Anyone who pays a household energy bill can take part, although if you are in debt to an energy company you may not be allowed to switch.

When is the switch happening?

You can register your interest now. Registration will close on 17th February 2014, with offers to customers expected from the 28th February 2014.
